Cash-for-vote row: 6 DMK men get life for murder of AIADMK supporter

Ram.Sundaram@timesofindia.com

Madurai: Five years after a confrontation over a cash-for-vote allegation during the 2021 Tamil Nadu assembly election campaign ended in an AIADMK supporter being doused in petrol and thrown into a burning van in Vilathikulam town, a court in Thoothukudi (Tuticorin) district has sentenced six DMK men to life imprisonment for his murder.

According to the prosecution, DMK supporters campaigning in the Vilathikulam constituency on April 2, 2021, offered money to the wife of an AIADMK supporter, Kalidass, to vote for their party's candidate. The woman, Jayabharathi, refused, leading to an argument.

The following morning, Kalidass confronted Murugan, one of the accused DMK supporters, at his fruit shop. A quarrel followed, and Kalidass's relatives allegedly assaulted Murugan, prompting a separate police complaint.

In the evening of April 3, the accused gathered outside Kalidass's house, damaged two vans and set them ablaze.

Self-sufficient wife not entitled to maintenance: HC

Bengaluru: A well-educated woman earning enough to maintain herself cannot claim maintenance from her husband merely because his income is higher, Karnataka HC has ruled, clarifying that the law doesn't state that a married woman under all circumstances should be maintained by her husband, reports Vasantha Kumar.

"Inability to maintain herself is a pre-condition to claim maintenance," Justice Chillakur Sumalatha observed on Oct 30. Financial independence, employment and self-sufficiency are valid grounds to reject a wife's claim for maintenance, the court held.

A Bengaluru-based software engineer moved the HC, challenging a family court's July 4, 2025, order that directed him to pay Rs 20,000 per month as maintenance to his wife, who had sought Rs 85,000 a month, claiming that her husband earned around Rs 40 lakh annually.

The man argued that his wife was equally qualified, earning Rs 54,700 a month as a technical writer at a software company.

He cited his health condition, stating that he suffers from chronic type 1 diabetes on account of beta thalassaemia, requires insulin injections four times a day and incurs medical expenses of around Rs 70,000 for himself and his parents.
